

Jul. 20, 2005. 01:00 AM

Toronto Star-Letters to The Editor Hardline Hindus quite reasonable

---

India and Pakistan's deadly code of dishonour

---

Opinion, July 18.

Salman Rushdie correctly states that anyone in democratic India who suggests the nation should have a uniform legal system is branded as anti-Muslim and in favor of "hardline Hindu nationalists." If one has an open mind and looks closely at the aims of those who are demonized as "hardline Hindu nationalists," most of their goals are very reasonable and are simply aimed at upholding the democratic concept of equality.

---

Ron Banerjee, Director,
Hindu Conference of Canada,
Toronto