Hindus know all too well the toll of terror

Bali has been repeatedly targetted by Islamic terrorists because it is a majority Hindu region. This is part of a trend: in Kashmir, 350,000 Hindus have been either killed or driven out into squalid refugee camps in India by Pakistani-backed terrorist groups. In Bangladesh, Amnesty International reports large-scale massacres and rapes by Islamic groups on the Hindu minority.

Islamic terror has struck repeatedly in India; for example, in 2002, Muslim mobs attacked and burned to death 61 innocent Hindus, mostly women and children, on a train in Godhra. Islamic terror is not directed solely against the West and Israel; other free and democratic societies are also victims.
